THE COURT,

Description of Dresses. The following description of dresses worn at the Court held by the King on the 13th ult. will be of interest to our lady read-

The Queen were a train of the most beautiful cloth of gold brocade, with a border and lining of amethyst velvet; dress of rich white satin embroidered with gold and precious etones of various colours; colours; large diamond, tiara surrounding a small diamond crown. Ornaments : Diamond and pearls. Orders: The Garter and English and Danish Family Orders. The Princess of Wales were a very beautiful dress of ivory tinted panne, handsomely embroidered with gold paillettes and large roses, composed of the palest pink mousseline de sole, the deficate foliage being worked in green chenille. The train. of exquisite lace, was exacefully draped from the shoulders to form a Venetian mantle. Her Royal Highness were magnificent diamonds.

The Duchess of Devenshire attended Court in a very handsome gown of white lisse, enriched with Indian embroidery of gold stars, and jewelled in pale yellow. The train was in pale Sevres blue cut velvet, and was worn in quite a new fashion, being fastened round the left arm, and then crossing the back to the right side, from whence it flowed out over the train of dress, with which it was beautifully contrasted. The Duchess of Buccleuch was attired in a gown of richest black brocaded satin in a conventional design, and patterned with bunches of pale gold lilies of the valley, finished at the hem with a soft ruche of gold sequined not. The bodice, draped in front with exquisitely fine black lace, showing a full vest of the gold embroidered net, had handkerchief sleeves of the net, finished at the top with bands of handsome gold embroidery. Her Grace's train of gold tissues was veiled in black chiffon, and her own priceless old black lace and her diamonds were magnificent. The Marchioness of Londonderry wore a white brocade of English manufacture. This composed the dress and bodice, which were trimmed with real coffee-coloured Irish lace. The train was ivory velvet, ornamented with a large and handsome design in the new Merrimac velvet. The very train was lined with satin exactly matching the tint of the lace on the dress, and there was a plastron of splendid diamonds on the front of the bodice.

The Countess of Airlie was all in black. Her gown was panne, the bodies folded across with one side much embroidered in jet and chenille . A band of chenille crossed either shoulder, and on the arm hung a cord and tassels of black chenille. The skirt was bordered with a heavy chemille fringe put on in vandykes. The train was black gauze trimmed with spraye of Merri mac yelvet in a design of large ruses and Road. Cool and Healthy Situation. Full leaves. The Countess Waldegrave word a very effective gown of black chiffon with an overskirt of champagne-coloured embroidery, steel beads and jet softly ruched with plesses frills ralling underneath to the hem. The bodice was arranged in bolero finished with embroidered frills over a full bodice, and the dress was held in at the back with a trellis work 762 of black velvet; the train, embroidered in the same colours, arranged with chiffon and embroidered frills and trimmed all down one side with a levely trail of shaded lilac, ending in a large cluster in the corner. The Dowager Countess of Leitrim wore a gown of fine black lace paillete in jet and steel over white satin, with an inner veiling of white chiffon, the train black velvet falling from both shoulders, and secured at the waist with a jewelled buckle. Her ornaments were pearls and diamonds The Countess of Dartmouth's gown of pale grey satin had the front panel of delicate grey accordion pleated chiffon, over which there was a trellis work of tiny grey chiffon roses; a long line of very beautiful nacre em-broidery outlined the panel at each side. The soft berthe was trimmed with grey roses; the train, of black velvet, was lined with pale grey chiffen. Lord Katherine Brand's white-and-gold moire was trimmed with flutes of white chiffon, pushing softly out at each seam at the foot of the skirt the bodice, arranged with gold embroidery, was softened at the top with a scarf of pale blue chiffon coming from over the train, and falling in a long end in front. The train, in blue and white tinsel gauze lined with cloth of silver, was edged with silver and knots of blue chiffon. Lady Constance Scott was dressed in white crystaline very fine lace. The bodice, trimmed with silver embroidery, was relieved with delicate touches of pink. The train, of white gauze embroidered with a tiny Empire wreath of pink

The Countess de Metternich, sister of the Gorman Ambassador, went to Court in a white satin dress, veiled with an exquisite robe of lace and chiffon, the mousseline forming the lower part of the dress being embroidered with large silver butterflies. The deep cream-coloured lace applique on the chiffen in tunic fashion, and falling in a loose semi-train at the back, was sown all over with silver sequins. The bodice was trimmed with a large spray of yellow orchids. The train was of yellow velvet, lined with white satin, trimmed with lovely Brussels lace and chiffon. Lady Windsor 245 was dressed in cloth of gold, veiled in fine net, exquisitely embroidered in raised medallions, worked in mother-of-pearl sequins, overlapping each other like the scales of a fielt. The bodice was finished with a large collar of the embroidery, and the entire gown was softened with gold and white table. The train of cloth of gold. shot with grey, was trimined with ruches of groy and gold tulle. Lady Lamington (in waiting on the Princess of Wales) wore a Its only trimming " as a leaf embroidery of the rich satin in a very quant design. The train was of silver cloth, veiled and draped with v ry arranged in black chiffon, was almost veiled in point de gauze lace. The train, of richest black velvet lined with white satin and draped with the fine point de gauze lace, was fastened on the shoulders with antique paste buckles. She were a diamond and pearl tiars, necklet, and stars, and a large pointed bodice ornament of pearls and diamonds. Lady Aline Dawson Damer, daughter of the Countess of Portarlington, wore a presentation gown of white duchesse satin trimmed with white chiffon and exquisite diamante lace; the train of silver embroidered tulle falling from one shoulder, and the waist was trimmed with chiffon. Indy Alison was attired in mauve brocade trimmed with Italian guipure lace. A berthe of the lace was fastuned on the bodice with a bunch of azaleas and rich amethyst-coloured velvet; the train of amethyst velvet, lined with white satin, was trimmed with lace and feathers. Mrs St. John Brodrick (presented on her marriage) looked very handsome in her soft, graceful bridal white attire. Lady Hay, who presented her daughter, were an underdress of grey satin, veiled in white Brussels net, embroidered with chiffon in trails of raised pink roses and pale green leaves, was very softly leached at the hem; the train of mignonotte-green satin lined with mauve poult de soie, and arranged at the top with a mantle of her own lovely old Brussels lace, white silk with an overdress of white mousseline de soie lightly embroidered in silver. The full baby bodice was trimmed with silver embroidered lisse. The train was of white rayonnant, edged with silver and soft chiffen frills.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

A fortnight ago, we called notice by several reliable correspondents near the distressed district, and suggested that His Excellency the Governor should organise a local relief fund. We then predicted that if His would respond generously to any appeal on behalf of their compatriots, and we are rather astonished to find that up to the present time no organised attempt has been made to collect money to buy rice for the starving pensantry of the Ordinance. interior. We have had a visit from Mr Hess, of the Christian and Missionary Alliance, Wuchow, who has come to Hongkong to make a personal appeal for help, and we have no doubt that the details we publish in another column will stir the hearts of the charitable and induce them to make a ready response to the appeal. Mr Hess had an interview with H.E. Sir H. A. Blake this afternoon, and we believe that as an outcome of this interview a subscription list will be opened to aid the relief work in Kwangsi, All that is asked for just now is $10,000. That is a small sum for Hongkong to raise,

At the Shanghai Mixed Court on the 15th inst., a native contractor, named Seen Yuechu, was charged with using inferior mortar in the construction of Chineso houses on Cadastral lot 4140, contrary to Municipal Regulations. Mr P. Tilley, of the Municipal Engineer's Department, prosecuted, and said that the charge was for an infringement of Clause 17 of the By-laws. The clause stated that the mortur used should consist of at least one part of lime to three parts of sand. The buildings which were the subject of the charge were situated in Macgregor Road and were inspected by witness several times in January and February. During those months the defendant was warned on several occasions about using mud instead of lime. On the 27th February it was found that he was still using mud, and the walls of the building were pulled down. From that date English and three French officers. until the 30th March the contractor used lime, but on the latter date it was again discovered that he was using mud. He was told that if he continued to infringe the bylaw he would be taken before the Mixed Court. On the 6th of April, however, he was caught using mud again, and the sum mons was issued. THE FAMINE IN KWANGSI.

An Appeal for Help. This forenoon, the Rev. Mr Hess, the Christian and Missionary Alliance, Wuchow, called upon us and supplied us Kwaiping lies about 150 miles to the west of Wuchow, on the West River, and Polo Pony Race; for bona-fide polo ponies about midway between Wuchow and Nanning. For three successive harvests the the peasant people are literally starving and are dying in hundreds. A worse feature than this is the fact that upwards of 30,000 people are computed to have been sold during the past month or twomen relling themselves for employment in the Straits Settlements and women and girls sold by husbands or parents into a (Capt. Thornhill) 0 life of sin and shame.

Mr Hess went up to Kwaiping on the 7th inst. to see the situation for himself, and he gives the following narrative of ber. some matters that came under his own observation :--

One day, an old woman, over 80 years of age, we found dead on the City wall, with a bowl of rice by her side. She was so reduced for want of food that she had evidently died while in the act of eating Men have fallen over and died while waiting for their turn to receive tickets. Dabies, mere skeletons, are left by the wayside, I y their mothers, who have nothing wherewith to feed them, and cannot bear to see them suffer. Mothers sell the r children in order to get rice. Many of these innocent creatures are thus sold into a life of sin and shame.

A most painful scene occurred on one of the launches where mother and daughter met incidentally after being sold and separated for three weeks. They flew into each other's embrace and wept for joy, but it was soon changed into tears of sorrow. shricks of pain and grief, because the man who had bought the girl ruthlessly tore her away from her mother's arms. Men who have fields and houses have no food to give to their families, and do not 0 want to sell their children, have come before the missionaries and prostrated themselves upon the ground, pleading with them that they would take their grown sons as servants, without wages only to give them baby was found by the wayside whose pitiful cries arrested the attention of some passer. It was in a starving condition. woman came along who offered to care for the baby, if we would give her 20 cents; a daily portion of rice if she continued to bring the baby with her as a proof of her faithfulness in caring for the child. The following day, she returned and told us very frankly that she could not do it, as she had two small boys of her own to support. She feared that if she kept the baby, she would not be able to find food enough for so many, missionary then made this proposition to her, that she leave her eldest boy, six years old, with him in the school, where he would be fed, provided she kept the baby. He rice to help her. She gladly agreed to this Another sad case was that of a girl sold | Lord Chumpley..... into slavery. Before leaving Hong How, 1 was startled by the wild shricks of a child leaving it on the left hand, and back who was frantic with fear. She awoke in the morning and found herself alone in the midsts of men, all strangers, in the cabin of a launch. She attempted to escape through the window, but was forced back, and kindly entreated to be quiet. I tried to make friends with her and bought her some cakes, and gave her some rice to cat, She was shy at first, but I soon won her confidence: When we reached Wo- Mechanical doll.......Miss Lillie Moore chow, on seeing that I was about to leave the launch, she begged me to take her with me. This, of course, I could not do. These cases could be multiplied by those who are continually on the spot, but enough has been written to show the condition of things

The relief work was begun by the missionaties, Mr and Mrs Fee and Mr Zehr. in a humble way, but the work rapidly grew too much for the resources of the mission, notwithstanding steady help Girl held first place from start to finish, from Canton and Hongkong. One night, about eight o'clock, the missionaries heard CHINA PONY STREPLECHASE; weight for the sound of weeping at their door, and opening it found two or three persons crying for help. Rice was boiled and their immediate necessities relieved. Next day, some 10 or 15 people came for food; the next, 30 or 40, and the numbers have gone on increasing till on one day recently so many as 4700 tickets were issued entitling the holders to a few ounces of rice. At first, the rations were served out at the mission, but the local officials lent the Emperor's temple. These officials have given no monetary assistance. They say they have to spend too much for the maintenance of soldiers in the Province to leave any margin to aid the distressed. The Chinese authorities at Canton are doing nothing, sistance. The price of rice has appreciated so much in the interior that it is proposed in front of the judge's box previous to to purchase future supplies in Hongkong, offered to carry the rice to Wuchow beneficial. on easy terms. Now, Mr Hess, an American misin the Kwaiping District of the Kwangei | sionary, had come down from Kwaiping, and had just informed him of the condition of affairs there. He had therefore decided to invite the people of Hongkong to subcraibe for the relief of the people in the famine district, and he thought the best thing would be, if the Council would permit him to suggest it, to lay this matter before them crops have failed, owing to drought, and and to ask honourable members to join him on Thursday at 12.30 -which he thought was the most convenient hour for business men -and then he would ask Mr Hess to be present. He would lay before that meeting all the information he (His Excellency) had, and it would be for the gentlemen present to say what should be done. He had no doubt that if it were shown there was need for assistance Hongkong, as on past occasions, would be ready to assist. He hoped the Press would kindly notice his request, and to state that any person who took an interest in the F matter would be welcomed at the meeting at 12.30 on Thursday in the Council Cham-

POLLARD'S LILLIPUTIANS

A Galety Girl.

A Gaiety Girl, though, perhaps, the least intellectual, is certainly not the least attractive of the school of comedy 'Girls.' Proof of the attraction of this charming musical comedy was given on Saturday night, at the Theatre Royal, when the Lil iputions performed before a house vell filled in every part. Miss Daphne Pollard, as the chaplain, was, as usual, excellent, and her duet with Miss Ruby Roberts, the chaplain's daughter, was one of the tit-bits of the evening's performance. Another clever performance was that of Mr Willie Thomas, as Major Barclay, and his two songs quite 'tickled' the heuse. A central figure in the evening's performance was Corporal Lance (Mr Edward MacNamara), and his two songs 'Gay Boulogne' and 'Please let me sleep 'elicited rounds of applause. In the latter song, Mr Fred Pollard takes up the refrain from the pit, and the 'American gag' never fails to draw the house, the audience on Saturday night recalling the singer no less than four times. Miss Peral Pollard, a chit of 6 years, delighted the authis we did, and also promised to give her dience with her dancing of an Irish jig All the other parts were capably filled, and the whole performance from the rise to the fall of the curtain on the last scene went without a hitch. To-night these clever ittle people repeat A Gauty Girl for the last time in Hongkong. Public attention has been so much at tracted of late to the new development in medicine Stearns' Wine of Cod Liver Oil -that the following letter will be read with interest:-

My attention having been drawn to Stearns' 'Wine of Cod Liver Oil with Peptonate of Iron,' I have pleasure in telling you that I can recommend this preparation to the public as the best medicine I have found containing cod-liver, oil.
